MORE than 110 people have enrolled to attend University of the Third Age (U3A) classes in Port Fairy this semester.

The new branch begins its offering in the first two weeks of February with some of the 15 courses reaching capacity. Courses include natural science, history, philosophy, current affairs, literature, creative arts and leisure activities taught by academics including retired lecturers and teachers.

President Kate Donelan said she was overwhelmed with the response and kept hearing that people wanted to keep their brains active and learn new things. It's also a chance for retired and semi-retired people to meet like-minded people in a relaxed environment.
