

COURSE INFORMATION Semester 1, 2021

Courses, small interest groups and activities will be held in three modes:
Face to Face (F2F), Field trips/Outdoors and Zoom.

Most F2F courses will be held at the Port Fairy Community House.
We will follow COVID-safety protocols including participants wearing masks.

Enrolment in courses will be subject to availability.
Every effort will be made to accommodate members' choices but places in F2F courses will be limited due to COVID-safe social distancing.

Not all courses have been allotted times and venues.
Final details will be available by Open Day (28 January).

Best of the Best - Aus Lit

Australia through the eyes of its great writers!

Each month we will read one or more 'classic' novels or memoirs and discuss how the writer interprets Australia's social and cultural life - past and present. Themes will include the changing attitudes to the land, the role of women, pioneers and explorers, relationships between First Australians and settlers, the impact of war and migration, and the diverse worldviews of the citizens of this country.

A reading list will be distributed.

Classic Literature

Reading the classics - these discussion-based sessions will explore traditional and contemporary literature.

We will examine how the writers have constructed their texts, consider the ideas being explored by each author and analyse the literary elements and the style of language that each has used. We might also examine some examples of literary criticism.

We will spend at least three sessions on each of the chosen works which will include novels, short stories, memoirs, and poetry.

Members of the group are encouraged to suggest titles

Ecology of South-west Victoria

Presenters: John Miller, Mike Raetz and Philip Du Guesclin

This field-based course will discuss the ecology of our local environment ranging from sand dunes to grasslands to woodlands to forests and more.

What determines the way the land looks; what can grow there; what animals live there - and how ecology shapes the world around us.

The course will be based on a series of five monthly hands-on field trips that explore the interactions of geology, geomorphology, climate, soils, plants, and animals of the major ecosystems of south-west Victoria. The field trips will take around 2-4 hrs and will be suitable for most mobilities.

Limited to 25 participants.

(Depending on demand, the same course will be presented in second semester 2021).

Enquiring into Astrology

People have always looked to the stars to explain their lives.

Astrology may be pooh-poohed as superstition, but it was used by Carl Jung to model the psychology of the soul, Elizabeth I to succeed in her reign and the Ancient Greeks and the Romans for prospects in battle, how to treat the sick and even how to pick a spouse. Australian first nations peoples have a sky culture which vastly predates that of Europe.

This course invites the curious and the sceptical to consider current and historical notions about the sky before reflecting on why hitherto conventional philosopher Richard Tarnas now says astrological consideration is important to understanding events on Earth.

Full details of this course are on <https://sites.google.com/view/philosophy-u3a-port-fairy/home> or via 'Courses' on the U3A Port Fairy web site.

Fascinating 20th Century Women

This course involves a series of presentations about the life and times of various Fascinating Women who lived and/or died in the 20th Century.

At each session we will hear about the life and accomplishments of these women.

The presentations will be in zoom mode and are expected to go about 45 minutes with plenty of time for questions and discussion.

We have a few presenters ready to start but if you have an interest in a fascinating 20th century woman and would like to make a presentation, please let us know.

So many fascinating women with so many topics to choose from – explorers, adventurers, artists, activists, scientists and more.

First Tuesday Book Club: Exploring The World through Fiction

Each month the group will meet to discuss a book: literary fiction from around the world. We will compare responses to the book, its characters, plot, and structure as well as the insights it provides to the social and cultural world of its setting and its author. If the book chosen is a 'quick read' then more than one book is chosen, if all agree!

The class member who chooses the book(s) for the month generally leads the discussion which may include presenting background information on the author, reviews of the book and group discussion questions.

Group members are encouraged to have input into the selection of books for the year.

History of Port Fairy

This course involves history of Port Fairy with lectures, history walks and perhaps the occasional outside venue.

We are planning to go back on what has been covered, so ideally this will appeal to new participants. We will examine the development of the unique community of the 'village' of Port Fairy, which was the background to important historical events. It was populated by extraordinary characters and resulted from significant international, social, and political influences.

The class is aimed at giving everyone the opportunity to discuss, research and work together to find out more about these aspects of the community in which we live.

The class is open to all with an enthusiastic interest in the early history of Port Fairy and the surrounding district.

Mindfulness and Meditation

SIG

Using Mark Williams and Danny Penman's book "Mindfulness: a practical guide to Finding Peace in a Frantic World" we will cover the 8 weeks mindfulness programme outlined in the book. Participants are asked to undertake the daily mindfulness and meditation tasks as outlined in the program -- at home in their own time. We will then discuss and review each week.

I have 6 copies of the book available for other participants. I am happy to lead this SIG if no-one else is available. I have had experience participating in mindfulness and meditation sessions throughout my life, but do not practice on an ongoing basis.

Pop-Up U3A Port Fairy

Look out for Port Fairy U3A Pop-ups during the year where anything could happen.

As the title suggests - a "pop-up" - it is just an opportunistic one off, event. Various topics will be presented by various people on an ad hoc basis depending on what and who is available from time to time.

No need to book - just keep your eye out for emails for events that will happen sporadically at any time during the year.

It might be a talk from a visiting expert on some subject; it might be to search the heavens for strange happenings; it might be to check out the seaweed on the beach after a storm....it could be anything.

And it could be at any time of the day, so be prepared!!!!

Pop ups are not only for science – contact a committee member if you want to have a pop up.

Reading Shakespeare				SIG
In 'Reading Shakespeare' you will be invited to share your interest in the Bard as you like it. A particular welcome is extended to merry wives and to two gentlemen, especially if they are named Henry or Richard. There is one work which we are forbidden to name but there is much other merchandise however tempestuous. The coordinator of this group is no Shakespeare expert, and this may lead to a comedy of errors. So, if you have previously loved to labour in this field please take measures to join. But it would be much ado about nothing if you simply had a night's dream and put in some shrewd preparation of readings and commentaries to make sure that after your tale all's well that ends well.

Wars of the Roses

The 15th century was a time of great chaos in England.

A series of wars raged across the country as the country’s great houses fought for the Crown. Ambitious men, weak kings and strong women struggled for the right to rule and to protect their families.

White Rose versus Red Rose.

This course will examine the great events of this most tumultuous period of English history against a background of political discourse and civil society very different to what we now consider to be the norm. Why was England, which had enjoyed relative stability for eight generations of royal dynasty, plunged into ongoing turmoil?

Treason! Murder! Civil War!
